Goethe's Realism: Metamorphosis and Mephistopheles

Christian P. Weber - Florida State University

April 21st, 2022 / 4PM / Munk School / 1 Devonshire / 108N

CHRISTIAN P. WEBER is an Associate Professor of German at Florida State University. His research aims for a comprehensive phenomenological and critical investigation of the human imagination in its various manifestations, ranging from ancient mythologies and Judeo-Christian theology to the emergence of national ideologies and global worldviews. Core areas of his research include Goethe, romanticism, aesthetic theory, lyric poetry, and biopolitical metaphors of nationalism. He is the author of Die Logik der Lyrik: Goethes Phänomenologie des Geistes in Gedichten (Rombach, 2013) and currently works on a book tentatively entitled "Goethe's Aesthetics of Poetic Attributes."

This lecture is co-sponsored by the Department of Germanic Languages and Literatures and SSHRC.
