

This is a preliminary version of the syllabus, and changes may occur*

The University of Toronto
German 205H: Introduction to German Literature I
Spring 2015

Instructor: Andrew Warren Office: Odette Hall #312 Office Hours: TBA E-mail: andrew.warren@utoronto.ca	Class meeting times: Tuesdays 12-2 & Thursdays 12-1 Location: TBC
---	---

Outline

This course offers an introduction to the study of literature in German. It is aimed at students who have been studying German language for 3 semesters, and are continuing with their 4th semester concurrently with the course. It is intended as a continuing course in language competence, but also an introduction to reading literature in German. We will be reading a number of short literary texts and a few non-fiction texts, specifically with the aim of expanding your working knowledge of the German language, and familiarizing yourself with the subtleties of literary language. As such, the course is meant to provide a transition from the study of language to the topic-based literature courses offered in undergraduate studies in German. Students will receive training in how to read and analyze texts, and how to understand “grammar at work” in literature. Classes will involve reading, discussions, group work, and exercises. Reading assignments will be in German. As far as possible, the classroom language will be German.

Required text

- Rosmarie Thee Morewedge, Mitlesen - Mitteilen. Literarische Texte zum Lesen, Sprechen, Schreiben und Hören, 4th edition (Boston: Heinle Cengage 2008).

This book is available for purchase online. The online service provides various options, including chapter-by-chapter download, e-text and rental.

We will be starting using the book right away, so please order it as soon as you can on the Heinle Cengage website:

http://www.cengage.com/search/productOverview.do?N=0&Ntk=P_Isbn13&Ntt=9781413029437&maintab=About the Book&subtab=empty

Evaluation

20%	Attendance & active participation
20%	Journal
40%	Homework
20%	Take-home exam

Note: The final grade is an accumulative grade. Low grades you receive early in the term will hurt you in the end (i.e. result in a lower course grade). There is no way to make up for bad grades or missed assignments. If problems should arise during the semester, you are advised to talk to me as soon as possible. Simply schedule an appointment with me or address me after the class session.

Course Requirements

Attendance and participation (20%): Regular attendance is mandatory. Absences will only be excused according to University regulations: for example, religious holidays, serious accidents or illness (medical note required), and serious family circumstances (written documentation required). Please notify me at least a week in advance in case you know you need to miss class. In addition to excused absences each student may have two (2) unexcused absences. Each unexcused absence after the second will result in a reduction of the final grade. Besides regular attendance, your participation represents a substantial part of your final grade. I expect you to come to class in time, having completed all the readings and assignments. You must bring to class a copy of the assigned text. You are responsible for contributing to and stimulating a meaningful exchange of ideas. You will be graded according to the quality and frequency of your participation.

Journal (20%): You will be required to purchase a small notebook which will serve as a journal for this course. It will be used to record your reading experiences, to draw Keyword-Lists (Stichwörterlisten), and for other notes associated with the assigned texts. You are required to maintain your journal on a week-by-week basis. The class will often begin by asking individual students to share sections of your journal, with the class, so you need to bring it to each class. Your journal will be graded twice: once mid-term, and once at the end of term. Submit your journal for grading on Wednesday 16 February and again on Wednesday 30 March

Homework (40%): This course is a hands-on course with a lot of classroom work, and ongoing homework assignments. You are required to complete all homework and submit it on time.

Take-home exam (20%): There will be a take-home exam which you can complete in your own time in the second half of the semester. It will involve reading and interpretation of literary texts.

A note on missed or late work: you can only obtain credit for your work if the delay is related to reasons for excused absences as defined above. Except for emergencies, all excuses for missing an exam or for late assignments must be discussed with me before the exam or due date. Except for emergencies, I will not accept excuses given after the exam or due date. An unexcused late assignment or missed exam will result in a zero.

Explore It Program

This year, we are adding a new element to the course – the Explore It program. This is a voluntary career exploration program that will allow you to meet with alumni from the German Department at their place of work and see firsthand how the skills and knowledge gained through this course can be translated into a breadth of potential careers.

Visits with alumni would last from a half- to a full-day and could include up to eight students. Each experience will differ depending on the alumni but in all cases, you have the chance to meet new people and see an alumnus' career in action, giving you the chance to think about your education in a wider context. An Explore It orientation will be scheduled in one of the early classes/tutorials introducing you to the program and showing you how to participate.

Avoidance of Academic Offenses

From the Academic Integrity Handbook: “Academic integrity is one of the cornerstones of the University of Toronto. It is critically important both to maintain our community which honours the values of honesty, trust, respect, fairness and responsibility and to protect you, the students within this community, and the value of the degree towards which you are all working so diligently. According to Section B of the University of Toronto’s Code of Behaviour on Academic Matters (<http://www.utoronto.ca/govcncl/pap/policies/behaveac.html>) which all students are expected to know and respect, it is an offence for students to: To use someone else’s ideas or words in their own work without acknowledging that those ideas/words are not their own with a citation and quotation marks, i.e. to commit plagiarism. To include false, misleading or concocted citations in their work. To obtain unauthorized assistance on any assignment. To provide unauthorized assistance to another student. This includes showing another student completed work. To submit their own work for credit in more than one course without the permission of the instructor. To falsify or alter any documentation required by the University. This includes, but is not limited to, doctor’s notes. To use or possess an unauthorized aid in any test or exam.

There are other offences covered under the Code, but these are by far the most common. Please respect these rules and the values which they protect.”